Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Saturday 06 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Very cold. Showers or longer spells of rain, hill snow.

Today:
Showers or longer spells of rain, falling increasingly as snow over the Pennines and Cheviot Hills and then to lower levels inland later today. Feeling very cold everywhere with a strong easterly wind, with coastal gales likely. Maximum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Tonight:
Sleet near the coast initially, with spells of snow elsewhere, then quickly replaced by snow showers everywhere. Significant accumulations of snow, especially for high ground, and icy stretches will occur. Minimum temperature -2 deg C (28 deg F).

Sunday:
Scattered snow showers, possibly heavy at times, and sunny intervals, although some places will stay dry. Further accumulations of snow are likely. Feeling bitterly cold everywhere with strong easterly winds. Maximum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Snow showers will continue, leading to further snow accumulations and icy stretches. Despite sunshine in-between the showers it will remain bitterly cold, with often strong winds and sharp overnight frosts.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.